Introduction:

Navigating the complex world of accounting and review services requires a clear understanding of the standards that govern the profession. This comprehensive guide dives deep into the Statement of Standards for Accounting and Review Services (SSARS), demystifying its complexities and providing practical insights for accountants, business owners, and anyone seeking clarity on the principles guiding these vital financial processes. We'll explore the key components of SSARS, address common misconceptions, and equip you with the knowledge to make informed decisions about your financial reporting. This isn't just another dry technical explanation; we’ll break down the jargon and focus on practical applications, ensuring you leave with a solid understanding of SSARS and its significance.

I. Understanding the Significance of SSARS

The Statement of Standards for Accounting and Review Services (SSARS) is a crucial set of guidelines issued by the AICPA (American Institute of Certified Public Accountants). These standards dictate the procedures and principles accountants must follow when conducting compilation, review, and preparation engagements for non-public entities. Unlike audits, which offer a higher level of assurance, SSARS engagements provide varying degrees of assurance, depending on the type of service performed. Understanding these differences is paramount for anyone relying on financial statements prepared under SSARS. The goal of SSARS is to ensure consistency, transparency, and reliability in the presentation of financial information, enhancing trust and promoting accountability within the business community. This is especially important for smaller businesses that may not require the full scope of an audit but still need assurance their financial statements accurately reflect their financial position.

II. Key Components of SSARS No. 21

SSARS No. 21, Clarification of Statements on Standards for Accounting and Review Services, represents the current authoritative guidance. This statement consolidates previous pronouncements and clarifies the responsibilities of accountants in performing these services. Key components include:

Compilation Engagements: This involves presenting information that is the representation of management without any assurance provided by the accountant. The accountant's role is primarily to assist in the preparation and formatting of the financial statements based on information provided by management.

Review Engagements: A review engagement provides a moderate level of assurance, going beyond a simple compilation. The accountant performs analytical procedures and inquiries to gain a better understanding of the underlying data. This enhanced scrutiny offers greater reliability than a compilation engagement but falls short of the comprehensive testing conducted in an audit.

Preparation Engagements: This service involves preparing financial statements based on information provided by management without any assurance. The accountant's role is purely mechanical, without any evaluation or verification of the data. The accountant is not responsible for the accuracy or completeness of the information.

Reporting Requirements: Each engagement type – compilation, review, and preparation – has specific reporting requirements. SSARS outlines the necessary disclosures, the level of detail required, and the specific wording to be used in the accountant's report. Failure to comply with these requirements can invalidate the financial statements and potentially lead to legal repercussions.

III. Distinguishing Between Compilation, Review, and Preparation Engagements

The distinctions between compilation, review, and preparation engagements are crucial. A compilation involves simply putting together information management provides; it's essentially a presentation service. A review involves limited analytical procedures to gain more comfort. A preparation engagement is similar to a compilation, however it requires a greater degree of professional skepticism from the accountant. Understanding these distinctions allows stakeholders to properly assess the level of assurance associated with the financial statements. For example, a lender might require a review engagement for a loan application, while a compilation might suffice for internal use only. Ignoring these distinctions could have severe implications for financial decisions.

IV. The Accountant’s Responsibilities Under SSARS

Accountants undertaking SSARS engagements have specific responsibilities. These include:

Professional Competence: Accountants must possess the necessary skills and experience to perform the engagement competently.
Due Professional Care: They must adhere to professional standards and exercise due diligence in all aspects of the engagement.
Independence: While not as stringent as audit requirements, accountants must maintain a level of independence to avoid conflicts of interest.
Communication: Effective communication with management and other stakeholders is crucial to ensure transparency and understanding.
Compliance: Adherence to all applicable accounting standards, including SSARS, is paramount.

V. The Importance of Proper Documentation

Thorough documentation is essential for all SSARS engagements. This documentation serves as evidence of the work performed, the procedures followed, and the conclusions reached. It protects both the accountant and the client in case of future disputes or questions regarding the financial statements. Maintaining detailed documentation is a vital aspect of professional responsibility and risk management.

VI. Implications of Non-Compliance

Non-compliance with SSARS can have serious consequences. It can lead to inaccurate financial statements, damage to the reputation of the accountant and the client, and potentially legal repercussions. It's crucial for accountants to stay abreast of the latest updates and guidance issued by the AICPA to ensure compliance.

VII. Staying Updated on SSARS Changes

The accounting profession is constantly evolving. Staying updated on changes and amendments to SSARS is critical for maintaining compliance and providing reliable services. Accountants should subscribe to professional journals, attend continuing professional education courses, and actively monitor updates from the AICPA to ensure they're employing the latest best practices.

statement of standards for accounting and review services: GAAS Guide, 2024 S Beasley Mark, 2023-09-26 CCH's GAAS Guide describes the engagement standards, practices, and procedures in use today, including Statements on Auditing Standards (SASs) and their Interpretations, Statements on Standards for Attestation Engagements (SSAEs) and their Interpretations, and Statements on Standards on Accounting and Review Services (SSARS) and their Interpretations. The 2020 Edition of CCH's GAAS Guide has been updated to reflect the latest available professional standards. This edition reflects all the changes resulting from the AICPA's efforts to clarify auditing, attestation, preparation, compilation, and review standards. It includes coverage of recently issued Statements on Auditing Standards, Statements on Standards for Accounting and Review Services (SSARS), and Statements on Standards for Attestation Engagements (SSAEs). The 2020 Edition of the GAAS Guide incorporates these requirements throughout the affected standards and includes coverage of the following: ? Statements on Auditing Standards No. 133, Auditor Involvement with Exempt Offering Documents ? Statements on Standards for Attestation Engagements No. 18, Attestation Standards: Clarification and Recodification ? Statements on Standards for Accounting and Review Services No. 24, Omnibus Statement on Standards for Accounting and Review Services--2018 The 2020 GAAS Guide also highlights recently issued audit and SSARS interpretations, and it summarizes current exposure drafts of proposed new standards. Included in the coverage of recently issued audit and SSARS standards and interpretations includes: ? Statements on Auditing Standards No. 134, Auditor Reporting and Amendments, Including Amendments Addressing Disclosures in the Audit of Financial Statements ? Statements on Auditing Standards No. 135, Omnibus Statement on Auditing Standards--2019 Omnibus Statement on Auditing Standards--2019The extensive coverage of these AICPA standards is particularly relevant to CPAs who serve nonpublic entity clients. The guidance contained in this edition is also relevant to CPAs who serve public company clients. Although the Public Company Accounting Oversight Board (PCAOB) is responsible for establishing professional standards applicable to audits of public companies, this edition includes summaries of issues having implications for audits of public companies. These summaries, labeled Public Company Implication, are incorporated throughout the coverage of the AICPA's AU-Cs. CPAs who audit public companies will find that these summaries help them identify key differences between audits of public and nonpublic companies. Our summaries of PCAOB Auditing Standards reflect the most recently issued standards including PCAOB AS-3101, The Auditor's Report on an Audit of Financial Statements When the Auditor Expresses an Unqualified Opinion and Related Amendments to PCAOB Standards, issued in June 2017, including the requirement that auditors communicate critical audit matters (CAMs) in the auditor's report. Our summaries also discuss a number of PCAOB exposure drafts and recently issued Staff Alerts, other notices and PCAOB staff guidance. Note: The PCAOB reorganized its Auditing Standards using a topical structure and a single integrated numbering system. We use that new numbering system when we refer to specific PCAOB Auditing Standards. Owing to the attention focused on corporate scandals involving allegations of fraudulent financial reporting, the need for auditors to detect material misstatements due to fraud is critical. To help sensitize CPAs to issues affecting auditor responsibility for fraud, this edition contains Fraud Pointers, which integrate fraud issues related to a particular professional standard's requirement. This should aid CPAs in considering fraud risks throughout the entire audit engagement. To keep CPAs abreast of potential changes affecting the AICPA Professional Standards and other developments affecting auditing practice, this edition contains overviews of outstanding exposure drafts. Throughout the book, highlights labeled Important Notice for 2020 explain key elements of potential changes, including proposed redrafts of existing professional standards and other regulatory changes, alerting CPAs to issues that may affect their engagements.
