World War II (1939-1945) resulted in the emergence of the United States and the Soviet Union as superpowers, setting the stage for decades of geopolitical tension. The Cold War, characterized by an ideological struggle between capitalism and communism, influenced global politics and led to proxy conflicts around the world. The collapse of the Soviet Union in 1991 marked a significant turning point, leading to a new world order with the rise of globalization and increased interdependence among nations.
